16th International Dialogue on Population and Sustainable Development

ACCELERATING PROGRESS ON SEXUAL AND REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH AND RIGHTS – 25 YEARS AFTER CAIRO

BACKGROUND

It has been almost a quarter of a century since the 1994 International Conference on Population and Development (ICPD) in Cairo articulated a bold new vision recognising sexual and reproductive health and reproductive rights (SRHR), women's empowerment and gender equality as cornerstones of successful, people-centred development programmes. Leading up to its 25th anniversary, an assessment of progress made in implementing the Programme of Action (PoA) is taking place at national, regional and international levels. In this context, the 16th International Dialogue on Population and Sustainable Development provides a timely opportunity to take stock and discuss how to move the ICPD agenda forward.

This year's dialogue takes place in a world that is arguably less receptive to SRHR than at the time of the ICPD PoA's inception. The political climate for SRHR is becoming increasingly hostile, exacerbating the lack of progress on SRHR for the most marginalised, and threatening progress that has already been made. Despite some tangible advances, such as the global decrease of maternal and child mortality by almost 50 per cent between 1990 and 2015, the overall SRHR situation is still far from acceptable: In developing regions, more than 45 million women have inadequate or no access to antenatal care, and 214 million women have an unmet need for modern contraception.

The report of the Guttmacher-Lancet Commission on SRHR was published in 2018. It offers an integrated definition of SRHR grounded in human rights, and proposes an essential service package as well as strategic priorities. The ICPD Beyond 2014 Global Report – a culmination of a landmark review of progress, gaps, challenges and emerging issues in relation to the ICPD Programme of Action – also continues to shed light on persistent challenges. The 16th International Dialogue will draw on these reports to identify persistent and emerging gaps and challenges in realising SRHR for all.

OBJECTIVES

- Provide a platform to discuss how the Guttmacher-Lancet Report has been received so far and how its findings can be used to develop concrete political and practical strategies for moving the ICPD forward
- Build partnerships, alliances, and networks between participants to jointly reflect the ICPD+25 review processes and prepare for upcoming events
- Identify enduring gaps and challenges and share examples of best practice to address them

METHODOLOGY

ON DAY 1, the results from the Guttmacher-Lancet Report will be presented and different aspects of the report will be discussed in interactive formats. Participants will reflect on how different aspects of the recommendations of the commission can be used at national, regional and international levels, as well as in different advocacy spaces to advance SRHR.

ON DAY 2, we will look at opportunities for the implementation of the recommendations of the Guttmacher-Lancet Commission. Firstly, by assessing possibilities to advance the SRHR agenda through different existing initiatives, such as SheDecides, PMNCH and others. Secondly, by looking at concrete projects which relate to different aspects of SRHR.

The moderators of the 16th International Dialogue on Population and Sustainable Development are Heather Barclay and Albert Eckert.

The International Dialogue on Population and Sustainable Development underlines the interdisciplinary importance of sexual and reproductive health and rights (SRHR) and population dynamics as key factors in achieving international development goals such as the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). The conference series is designed to facilitate the networking of national and international players and encourage the exchange of information and experience.

The International Dialogue is an annual, two-day conference taking place in Berlin, jointly organised by DSW (Deutsche Stiftung Weltbevölkerung), Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ) GmbH, International Planned Parenthood Federation (IPPF) and KfW Entwicklungsbank, in close cooperation with the Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ) and Bayer AG.
